

Abstract

The present invention contemplates in part coacervates in which a bioactive substance and delivery agent are encapsulated therein for controlled release. In certain embodiments, the said bioactive substance and delivery agent are a viral vector and virus, respectively. Processes for preparing and using coacervates of the present invention are described.